Job Overview

Are you ready to join the Un-carrier movement?

This role is essential for designing, implementing, and deploying scalable software solutions that meet customer requirements and develop/support processes and systems supporting front line call center organizations in the prepaid and postpaid business. The role involves collaborating with engineers to develop software components using technologies such as virtualization, microservices, software-defined networking, network functions virtualization, and big data. It requires independent judgment to resolve technical issues and make recommendations for software design and implementation. Success is measured by the ability to deliver effective software solutions that integrate with system protocols and meet business and technical requirements. The work impacts organizational capabilities by enabling advanced software systems that improve operational efficiency and customer experience.

Job Responsibilities:

- Develop software solutions and conduct tests to drive engineering projects and ensure quality deliverables
- Contribute to design innovations that improve systems, processes, or services using new frameworks and industry best practices
- Collaborate with technical teams to deliver solutions and mentor others through knowledge sharing and training sessions
- Support technology strategy by evaluating and applying current technologies that align with business goals
- Create clear documentation for software code, system designs, and business requirements to support knowledge sharing
- Also responsible for other duties/projects as assigned by business management as needed
